PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

This vernacular building (c. 1940) est. is rather unique in appearance. It is a two-story or possibly 2.5-story arrangement with an end-gabled, asphalt shingled roof. One gabled end faces DeKalb Pike and features two sets of double sash (6x1) windows on the first and second floors and a single set of windows at the attic level. The south side has a three bay arrangement with a hooded entrance in the center. The north side has three bays on the second floor and four on the ground floor. Like the south side, it has a single, hooded entrance. The hood is a gabled hood projecting from the wall. A one-story, shed roof addition is attached to the back end of the building. The building is of frame construction resting on a ½-story, stucco covered block foundation. The frame portion is clad in machined shingles. A single brick chimney is located on the back gabled end. The building measures approximately 45' x 35', plus the addition.

Classification: The vernacular building is Class II.

The Creamery

By Agnes Baker Jefferson
Photography by George S. Peck

In Bean's "History . . ." page 1170, under Villages; Centre Square, it states that "the Creamery is located here and does a flourshing business." In the Recorder of Deeds office, a transaction states that land and building (indeterminate age) were acquired by the Creamery Association from Joseph Irwin Yost in 1881, the year indicated in the Creamery Ledger that the business was begun.

The actual Creamery Ledger, with Victor H. Baker as Secretary-Treasurer, is shown in the accompanying picture. It is now the property of Dr. Charles Baker, Victor Baker's grandson.

The Ledger is distinguished in that, it presents a simplified lesson in economics, i.e., how stock companies are formed and operated. It would make an excellent device to explain investing money to an elementary business class. Secondly, it contains the names of 92 members. These stockholders were locally prominent people who purchased stock at $5.00 per share. The capital stock was $3,800.00. The list of people gives an insight as to who lived and worked here approximately 100 years ago. Some names are of people who are descendents of old families from 100 years before that (1780) and some are the names of the ancestors of some of our families still living here in 1976.

Not all stockholders were farmers. The local physician, Dr. Samuel E. Seiple, bought 25 shares. William Singerly, the owner of the old Philadelphia Record and former owner of what is now Normandy Farms, purchased 200 shares. Albert Katz, innkeeper, possessed 20 shares and the former Reverend D. Levin Coleman owned 12 shares.

Former Creamery Building Now Homes of McKelvey Family

Robert McKelvey, the present owner and resident of the refurbished building, told the writer that cheese, butter, and other related dairy products were made and sold here.

The white-shingled structure is located along the Silver Run that flows through the village. The water from the stream was utilized in the cooling process. The central location was an ideal place for an infant industry to flourish with the source of supply — milk from large and improved dairy herds nearby — and a ready market in Norristown and neighboring villages. The cooperative efforts of this group of men had a favorable influence in the community and deserves attention here.

Robert and Betsy McKelvey live on one side of the two-dwelling arrangement, while the sister-in-law and niece, Marion and Joyce McKelvey, reside on the south side. Bob and Betsy take great pride in their continuous blooming of flowers — from crocuses, daffodills, tulips, petunias, begonias, right through the seasons to chrysanthamums.

Bob likes to relate the story of his birth. His parents emigrated from Ireland and his brother John was born here. When his parents returned to Ireland for a visit, Bob was born there and came to the United States as an infant. Much to his dismay, when it became time for him to vote, at age 21, he had to take out citizenship papers and become a naturalized citizen. His loyalties show he is a good one!

This pleasant home is the only really old building remaining along DeKalb Pike on the west between Reed's Country Store and St. Helena's Church.
