PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

This secluded house is an example of Federal architecture. It consists of a large two and a half story, three bay core with additions to produce an H-plan building. The core is an end gable house with two interior end chimneys. The house is clad in stucco. The windows are floor specific: the first floor windows are six over nine double hung with shutters; the second floor windows are six over six double hung with shutters; the third floor windows are three over three double hung without shutters. A simple one story porch adorns the façade. The additions are also stucco-clad. They maintain the first and second story window treatment.

Associated Resource: An associated carriage house is in poor shape.

Classification: While this house is in excellent condition, the additions make it a Class II resource.
